

SUPPLEMENT TO THE NONCONFORMIST.

VOL. XVIII.—NEW SERIES, No. 658.]

LONDON: WEDNESDAY, JUNE 9, 1858.

[GRATIS.]

THE CHURCH-RATE BILL IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

WE have great pleasure in publishing this week a Supplement specially devoted to the Church-rate question. While we write, the immediate passage of Sir John Trelawny's Church Rate Abolition Bill through the House of Commons is only a probability. The actual issue of the debate on the third reading will be found recorded in the body of the paper. But, assuming, as we certainly may do, that the bill will, sooner or later, during the present session be passed by a large majority in the Lower House, the next consideration is to insure it a worthy, if not a cordial reception, in the Hereditary Chamber. For the first time, a measure proposing a final settlement of this long-lived grievance goes up to the Lords endorsed by a majority of the Commons. It is a new epoch in the history of the Church-rate struggle, demanding special and extraordinary efforts. The Parliamentary Committee of the Liberation of Religion Society have shown their sense of the importance of the occasion by privately issuing such full and complete information to their friends throughout the country as will, we are sure, re-kindle their activity and direct it into the most useful channel. The accompanying circular, forms of petition, and list of the House of Peers, with their town and country addresses, will no doubt reach the hands of many of our readers by another channel; and we would bespeak for these documents immediate attention, with a view to prompt and energetic action. But the present appeal is addressed to all the friends of Church-rate Abolition without distinction; and we shall greatly rejoice if the additional publicity given to it through our columns be the means of inducing all our readers to bestir themselves in the work of petitioning the House of Lords. Let none wait for a personal appeal. The work to be done has been made easy and practical by the wise and business-like instructions of the Liberation Society. If the supporters of Church-rate repeal will but adequately respond to their call, the Duke of Somerset, who has courageously undertaken the conduct of the bill, will, in submitting it for their lordships' acceptance, be able to show that it is supported in an unusual degree by public opinion out of doors, and that the country will be satisfied with nothing short of total and unconditional abolition.

I.—CIRCULAR.

LIBERATION SOCIETY, COMMITTEE ROOMS,
2, Serjeant's Inn, Fleet Street, E.C.
June 7, 1858.

DEAR SIR,

It has at length happily become our duty to make the necessary arrangements for introducing this Bill to the Upper House; and we entertain a strong conviction that means not materially differing from those which have been employed with such signal success in the Commons will not fail of their effect upon the other branch of the Legislature. The DUKE OF SOMERSET has taken charge of the Bill.

As the Lords have never received any considerable number of PETITIONS in favour of Church-rate Abolition, and as it is avowedly sought by this means to induce a disbelief among their Lordships in the generality of any desire for abolition, it is proposed, in the first instance, to meet our opponents on their own ground, and by the great preponderance of our signatures over theirs to place beyond question the direction of public opinion on this matter. We have not asked our friends for Church-rate petitions since 1855, and we now confidently assure ourselves of their cordial assistance during the next few weeks to effect the required result. In 1855 we obtained nearly 2,000 petitions, with about 160,000 signatures. We can hardly err in now anticipating an overwhelming answer to any demonstration which may result from the efforts of the "Committee of Laymen."

We need not remind you that signatures may with great propriety be asked for from Churchmen as well as from Dissenters. They should be forwarded from Town Councils, Denominational County Associations, Parish Vestries, Dissenting Congregations, Public Meetings, and from the inhabitants of Boroughs, Market Towns, and Villages generally. We would particularly refer to the great additional advantage secured by PUBLIC MEETINGS, as affording an opportunity of hearing what our opponents may have to say in defence of their system, of canvassing it under the most favourable auspices, and of having a full report in the local press. If DEPUTATIONS to attend such meetings will be of any assistance, we will do our utmost to meet every demand.

Petitions should be sent up as soon as arrangements can possibly be made for obtaining the requisite signatures, and should not be discontinued until the debate on the second reading is closed. The necessary instructions are given on another page, with some forms which may be thought applicable to the present stage of the controversy. We also send you an extensive list of Peers connected with the English and Welsh counties, arranged according to the alphabetical order of the counties. As some guide to your selection, we have distinguished, by appropriate marks prefixed to their names, such Peers as have already voted for the Bill while in the Commons (necessarily few in number), or have affirmed in another shape the principle involved in it by supporting the Oaths Bill or the Ministers' Money Abolition Bill, or both. It is not, of course, to be understood that Peers who have assented to these last will therefore be prepared at once to abolish Church-rates; but it is impossible not to feel that they have practically advanced a long way towards that conclusion.

But we believe that you can render still more important assistance than by either petitions or public meetings. It is unquestionable that the most effective of the instruments which have enabled us to carry the Commons, has been the systematic maintenance of PERSONAL COMMUNICATIONS from the constituents of individual Members. And, although Peers have no constituents, there is well-known evidence before us of their sensitiveness to public opinion, when it is really made known to them. The three most important measures of recent times are the Repeal of the Test and Corporation Acts, the Reform Bill, and the Repeal of the Corn Laws. Each of these passed the Lords without delay when once it had been carried in the Commons. If the Oaths Bill is an exception, it is certainly an exception in the comparative apathy in regard to it of the public mind. We would urge most respectfully upon our friends in every county that they should regard it as their specially-allotted part in this final scene of the drama, to act upon those Peers particularly who are connected with their own county, and to inform them as fully of the practical working of the Church-rate system under their own eyes, as we have reason to know has already been so effectively done with the Members of the Lower House. Wherever there is in any parish in the county an extortionate estimate, a putting down of fair discussion in vestry, or intimidation at a poll, these things may now not only be exposed at the vestry, but be made the subject of immediate communication to the Peers of that county. Let us be assured that there is no hold which our opponents can have on their sympathies one-half so strong as that which results from their not being honestly informed what it is they are supporting.

The result is in higher hands than ours. But for our parts we believe that our friends have confidence in us that we have never suffered their exertions to be wasted, and in that assurance we ask their aid now.

We are, dear Sir,

Faithfully yours,

CHARLES J. FOSTER,
Chairman of Parliamentary Committee.
J. CARVELL WILLIAMS,
Secretary.
